IDG's Computerworld Names Axxess to 2015 List of 100 Best Places to Work in IT

DALLAS (June 22, 2015) –Axxess, an industry leader in home health management software, has been named as a 2015 Best Places to Work in IT by IDG's Computerworld in the publication's 22nd annual survey. The survey lists the top 100 organizations that challenge their IT staffs while providing competitive benefits and compensation.

"We're honored to be recognized by Computerworld as one of the Top 100 Best Places to Work in IT," said John Olajide, President and CEO of Axxess. "We believe IT employees want to work in an innovative, yet collaborative environment that supports their efforts to build the best products, services and customer experience. Our culture at Axxess is world class. We're grateful for this recognition."

Axxess is a rapidly-growing technology company, providing software for health organizations to efficiently run their businesses. The company empowers healthcare companies with easy-to-use, cloud-based software that integrates all aspects of their operations so they improve patient outcomes while growing their business.

Axxess builds state-of-the-art technology using innovative methods and processes designed to deliver superior user experiences. "Our people, however, are our most valuable asset. We are open to talent in all its forms and constantly seek the best and brightest," said Olajide. Company employees are a mix of many backgrounds and cultures, with over 25 countries represented in the Axxess family. Employees are encouraged to exchange ideas and 'let the best idea win.'

"The 100 organizations on Computerworld's 2015 Best Places to Work in IT list realize that attracting and retaining a highly-skilled technology workforce leads to competitive advantage," says Scot Finnie, editor in chief of Computerworld. "In a tight market for tech talent, these outstanding employers attract the best and brightest IT pros with generous salaries and top-drawer benefits, then deepen their teams' engagement with challenging, business-critical projects built around cutting-edge technologies. As a result, these winning organizations are best positioned to take advantage of the digital transformation sweeping through every industry."

About the Best Places to Work in IT

The Best Places to Work in IT list is an annual ranking of the top 100 work environments for technology professionals by IDG's Computerworld. The list is compiled based on a comprehensive questionnaire regarding company offerings in categories such as benefits, career development, training and retention. In addition, Computerworld conducts extensive surveys of IT workers, and their responses factor heavily in determining the rankings.
