Dallas (February 22, 2011) - By incorporating diagnosis-based teaching guides in the skilled nurse progress notes and OASIS assessments; Axxess' Agencycore is the first home health software home to provide nurses with instant and convenient access to information about diseases, conditions, and wellness issues in language they can understand. With this integrated access, home health nurses can learn about the latest treatments, look up information on a drug or supplement, find out the meanings of words, or view medical videos or illustrations. They can also get links to the latest medical research on several topics or find out about clinical trials on a disease or condition.

Home health nurses nationwide that utilize Axxess' Agencycore Home Health Software can now enjoy the benefits of having instant and convenient access to teaching guides based on patient diagnoses while completing their progress notes within Agencycore.

Axxess Agencycore home health software offers extensive information from the National Institutes of Health and other trusted sources on over 800 diseases and conditions. There are directories, a medical encyclopedia and a medical dictionary, easy-to-understand tutorials on common conditions, tests, and treatments, health information in Spanish, extensive information on prescription and nonprescription drugs, health information from the media, and links to thousands of clinical trials. The information is updated daily.

With an unmatched commitment to helping home health agencies improve compliance, Axxess' Agencycore home health software helps improve patient outcomes by helping home health nurses improve the care provided to their patients. Medical review audits by regulators make it imperative for home health agencies to properly and accurately document the care provided to their patients. Home health agencies are required to prove that their services are medically necessary and Axxess' Agencycore home health software helps home health agencies prove medical necessity, improve compliance, improve the quality of their clinicians' documentation and reduce documentation errors.
